5TH JEFFERSON BANQUET

Secretary of the Navy Daniels the Guest of Honor

Gives the Democratic Host a Great Message. A Number of Local People Present.

The birthday of Thomas Jefferson, April 13th was celebrated by the Central Democratic Club of Harrisburg with a Jefferson anniversary banquet, the fifth one held by the Club, and was carried off most successfully. The attendance was very large, over eight hundred diners being present and several hundred more occupied the galleries to hear the speeches.

The hall was beautifully decorated with a lavish display of the national colors and in the rear of the speakers was a fine picture of Jefferson and the State flag of North Carolina, out of compliment to the guest of honor, Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels. During the feast the Tydegrove Orchestra and a quartet of vocalists entertained the diners. Among the prominent Democrats at the guests' table in addition to Secretary of the Navy Daniels were Congressman A. Mitchell Palmer and Hon. Vance C. McCormick, Democratic candidates for U. S. Senator and Governor of the State, Fourth Assistant Postmaster General Blakeslee, Collector of the Port Berry, "Farmer" Cressy, State Chairman Morris, a number of congressmen, state senators, judges and other officials.

Adams county was represented among the diners by S. Miley Miller, C. S. Duncan, E. A. Weaver, J. G. Sionaker and the editor of the Compiler.

Speeches were made by Secretary of the Navy Daniels, Wm. H. Berry, "Farmer" Cressy, Vance C. McCormick and A. Mitchell Palmer. They were all good, enthusiastic and delightful to the hundreds of Democrats and citizens listening to them.

Some of the good things said by the guest of honor, Secretary Daniels, are the following:

"When this goodly company of Pennsylvania Democrats have fought a good fight and kept the faith, present themselves to the gates of the New Jerusalem (and mind you all good Democrats are certain to present themselves there and be admitted) (laughter), when this goodly company stands at the shining gates and some angel asks, 'Whence come these?' St. Peter will reply: 'These are they that came up through great tribulation.' (Applause). 'Many of you have fought long battles for your principles without reward and most of your lives without the hope of reward, have set an example to men in every clime, and have shown that it is better to stand for convictions in defeat than to win victory by devious ways.' (Applause).

"Your constancy in all these years finally gave to this country the present Democratic administration because if it had not been for this stone wall delegation from Pennsylvania in the Baltimore Convention we would not be here tonight celebrating a great Democratic victory and a great Democratic administration."

"A few weeks after the Baltimore convention a gentleman asked me if I had ever been in Baltimore. I said, 'Yes, I spent a year there last week.' (Laughter). And the best part of that year was spent fighting elbow to elbow and in daily and nightly touch with the great delegation which Pennsylvania sent to that convention."

When the delegates who believed that Woodrow Wilson (Applause) was the fittest man to lead our party in the struggle to restore government to the people they gathered there and looked to Pennsylvania and Mitchell Palmer. And as we followed him to victory in that convention, America has come to look to him as second to none in leadership in the National House of Representatives. (Applause).

I often tell our Democrats in the Democratic States where they always win, that they deserve no credit, because they carry it always, and that the real high place in the synagogue in Democracy is in Pennsylvania, the State where they have to fight for every inch of ground that you gain. (Applause).

I have other reasons for being happy to come to this meeting of Pennsylvania Democrats, because it is my daily pleasure in Washington to be associated in the cabinet with one of the wisest and most sensible and patriotic men I have ever known. I refer to William B. Wilson, Secretary of Labor.

"I am glad that you are celebrating Jefferson's birthday on Jefferson's birthday. They tell me you are in the habit of celebrating Jefferson's birthday most any day in April. But in this you have but followed Jefferson's ideals and desires. When asked for the date of his birth that his birthday might be celebrated the same of Monticello answered, 'No day ought to be celebrated in America except the birthday of liberty.' and whenever you celebrate Jefferson's birthday you celebrate the birthday of liberty, equality and justice."

"There is no public policy that cannot be tested in the crucible of Jefferson's teachings. There are problems of our day not known when he walked among us and carried a torch to lead men into the light of liberty, but even in the solving of those new problems, a reference to 'What would Jefferson have done?' will be illuminating and helpful. History is ever repeating itself, and questions that are pressing for solution now may nearly all be settled by the rules laid down by Jefferson."

"There is not a special privilege enjoyed from government by any citizen that is not contrary to the teachings of Jefferson and a reproach to Democracy. Our call is to enlist for the war against Privilege. We will not make this fight successfully by leaders who obtain special privilege or a sort for themselves or who are representatives of the sort of invidious government that has cursed the Republic."

Election of senators by the people is a Democratic gift to the American people and in this year of grace the American people will show their appreciation of this Democratic reform by increasing the Democratic majority in the Senate.

"The eyes of the nation are upon Pennsylvania and there is confidence that the votes of the Keystone State will elect a Senator who will keep step to the new and awakened national conscience."

"The income tax is another Democratic doctrine put into the Constitution and enacted into law. It is the fairest and most just of all taxes. If a man has a large income, he is able to pay the tax. If he does not enjoy much income, he does not have to pay the tax. This is not true of other forms of taxation. For twenty-five years the party of Jefferson sought to secure an income tax."

"The most important constructive legislation of a generation is the new currency law, which after great tribulation, was enacted by Congress. For a decade, the party of Hamilton had been wrestling with the demand for a modern currency system to replace the archaic measure that invited panics in times of prosperity and made industry and commerce the prey of speculators and monopolistic control of giant institutions."

"We are told by those who had controlled the financial policy of our government for a generation that the new currency act would be a national blunder. But these very prophets of disaster are now praising it and hastening to bring their institutions within its provisions."

"Tariff laws have been written by Privilege and for Privilege. The beneficiaries wrote the tax that poured money into their pockets. The Democratic Congress drafted a tariff act, every paragraph of which meets the Jeffersonian test of 'Equal right to all and special privilege to none.'"

"The Democratic program for the present session of Congress will add to these constructive acts a rural credit banking system that will meet the needs of our agricultural development, and an anti-trust measure to throttle monopoly and open the free avenues of trade. The Democratic administration will then confidently say to the American people: 'A little over one year ago you entrusted us with power. We made certain promises. They have been put into statute law. The public service has been regarded as a trust by those you called to positions of responsibility. Our record of achievement is before you. It has been wrought out under the calcium light. No single act has been dictated by those seeking special privilege. With an eye single to serving the common weal, the making and execution of laws has been patriotic and unselfish. The public good has been the only goal.'"

"In the good providence of the God of Nations the clock of destiny never strikes that the man of the hour does not arise to meet the need. When the oppressed colonies in the new home of the free needed a champion in arms and a leader in unifying sentiment, Washington appeared; in the fulness of time Jefferson came as a wise master builder of our republic and as a prophet of the rights its people were to have in government—not man-conceded but God-given rights; when the nation was swept into the vortex of financial danger, Andrew Jackson was put at the helm and guided the ship past the peril of a central bank; when Privilege had gained an alarming foothold, Woodrow Wilson came preaching the New Freedom—the great Trinity of Democratic Presidents."

THE THIN AND WEAK Easy Way for Them to Get Strong and Fat.

To thin and weak People Drugg Store has a word to say. Let them use Samose, the wonderful flesh-forming food, that is now so popular, and they will soon be plump and rosy.

Samose is not an ordinary medicine. It is a flesh-forming food that is adapted to the most delicate. Its tonic effect gives strength and health so that after its use for a short time, all the flesh and fat producing elements in the food will be easily assimilated and retained by the body.

The large sale Peoples Drug Store has had on Samose since they first introduced it in Gettysburg and the wonderful results following it has made these such enthusiastic believers in its great merit, that they give their personal guarantee to refund the money if Samose does not make thin people fat and restore strength and health.

When a gain in weight is noticed after Samose has been used for a week or ten days, and health has improved, and you notice yourself growing stronger, you certainly should feel more than satisfied with what you have received from the small cost of 50c.

NEW DEMOCRATIC RULES

Adopted by State Central Committee and Now in Force.

Hon. A. Mitchell Palmer Address the Committee at Conclusion of Work of Revising Rules

The Democratic State Committee met in Harrisburg on Tuesday of this week to adopt new rules for the party to conform with the new election laws. State Chairman Roland S. Morris in calling the meeting to order told of the work of the special committee in preparing the rules and after a few minor verbal changes to make the meaning more clear the rules were adopted. County Chairman David H. Guise was unable to be present and substituted Wm. Arch. McClean, who was present at the meeting.

The following are the rules adopted by the Democratic State Committee, and new party rules will have to be adopted by the Democratic County Committee to conform with the new election laws and the new Democratic State Committee rules.

RULE I.
Sec. 1. The representative and authoritative bodies of the Democratic party of Pennsylvania shall consist of:
1. State Committee.
2. State Executive Committee.
3. Division Committee.
4. County Committees.
and such other subordinate committees as the rules of the respective County Committees shall provide. State Executive Committee is hereinafter called Executive Committee, and committees provided for by County Committees are called Subordinate Committees.

RULE II.
The County Committees are hereby authorized and empowered to make such rules to be operative in their respective counties, for the selection and organization of the members thereof, not inconsistent with these rules and the law, as shall be necessary for their government and the promotion of the interests of the party, provided, however, that such rules shall not become effective until and unless approved by the Executive Committee.

The Executive Committee is hereby authorized and required to examine the rules of the Democratic County Committees biennially, and to either approve them or make such changes as it may deem necessary and expedient.

RULE III.
Special Meetings and Contests.

Sec. 1. Special meetings of Division Committees, the Executive Committee, and the State Committee, may be called by the Chairman of the respective committees, and shall be so called by such Chairman upon the written request of at least one-fourth of the members of the respective committees. Written requests for special meetings shall state the purpose for which such meetings are to be held. If any Chairman shall, upon being requested to call such meeting, fail so to do for five days after receipt of said request the persons making the request may themselves call the meeting.

Sec. 2. Whenever there shall be any dispute as to who is legally elected Chairman of any County Committee, the contestant shall, within ten days after official notice of election, file notice of contest, with the Chairman of the Executive Committee, accompanied by proof of service of a copy thereof on the other party. The notice shall be in writing and shall set forth fully and at large the ground upon which the contest is made, and shall be supported by an affidavit. It shall be the duty of the Chairman of the Executive Committee to lay the contest before the members of said committee, who shall meet within 20 days after receiving notice of the contest, for the purpose of determining the same; notice of the time and place of said meeting shall be mailed to the parties interested at least three days prior thereto. The decision of the Executive Committee, after hearing had, shall be final and binding on all parties.

Sec. 3. If there shall be a dispute as to who is the legally elected Chairman or member of any subordinate committee, except where members of a committee shall have been elected by the people at an election provided by Act of Assembly, such dispute shall be determined in the first instance by the committee in which it shall arise, and the party failing therein, if he shall deem himself aggrieved, shall have the right to appeal from the decision of such subordinate committee to the Executive Committee, which appeal shall be taken and heard in the manner and form provided in the case under Sec. 2 of this rule.

RULE IV.
Division Committees.

Sec. 1. Division Committees shall consist of the members of the State Committee within the respective political divisions into which the State of Pennsylvania shall be divided for the purpose of party organization by the Chairman of the State Committee. The officers of each Division Committee shall consist of a Chairman, to be elected by the members thereof from within or without the Democratic Division Committee, who shall be a resident Democratic elector of the division, and who shall hold his office for the period of two years from the third Wednesday following the third Tuesday of May in each even-numbered year, and until his successor shall have been elected; and of a Secretary and Treasurer, to be appointed by the Chairman.

Sec. 2. Division Committees shall meet for the election of a Chairman and for such other business as may be proper, not later than the third Wednesday following the third Tuesday of May in each even-numbered year, at Harrisburg, at such place therein and at such hour as the Chairman of the State Committee shall appoint for that purpose.

Sec. 3. It shall be the duty of the Chairman of each Division Committee to call all meetings of such Democratic Division Committee, except the biennial meeting provided for in the preceding section.

RULE V.
State Executive Committee.

Sec. 1. The State Executive Committee shall consist of the Chairman and Secretaries of the State Committee, and the Chairmen of the Division Committees. The State Executive Committee shall act in an advisory capacity to all committees, and shall perform such other functions as may be conferred by these rules or otherwise delegated to it by the State Committee. The Chairman and the Secretaries of the State Committees shall be the Chairman and Secretaries of the Executive Committee. It shall be the duty of the Chairman to call all meetings of the State Executive Committee.

RULE VI.
Sec. 1. Members of the State Committee shall be elected, and shall meet biennially for organization, as provided by law.

Sec. 2. At the said biennial meeting for organization the State Committee shall elect a Chairman and a Treasurer. Their terms of office shall begin from the date of their election and continue for the period of two years and until their successors shall have been elected. Any Democratic elector of the State of Pennsylvania shall be eligible for the election to either of said offices. The Chairman of the State Committee thus elected shall, by and with the advice and consent of the State Executive Committee, conduct all State Campaigns, subject to the approval of the State Committee. All committees hereinafter provided for shall be subordinate to and under the direction of the State Committee.

Sec. 3. The Chairman shall appoint a Secretary and a Resident Secretary of the State Committee, and the latter shall be in regular attendance at State Headquarters. The Chairman shall be entitled to vote in said Committee upon all questions.

Sec. 4. It shall be the duty of the Chairman of the State Committee to call all meetings of the State Committee and of the State Executive Committee, giving in writing ample notice of all such meetings.

Sec. 5. No person holding a political appointive office of profit under an administration, City, County, State or National, opposed to the Democratic party (except offices of a Judicial character and appointed by Courts and Notaries Public), and no person who has entered into an arrangement or agreement with opponents of the Democratic party to promote the election of any candidate or candidates opposed to the Democratic party, or who by his voice or vote within two years has supported, aided or abetted the enactment of legislation repugnant to Democratic principles and the will of the majority of the representatives of the Democratic party in any legislative body where the same shall be under consideration, shall be eligible to the office of Chairman or member of any Democratic Committee, and the Executive Committee, after a full hearing by the said Committee of all the evidence submitted to it for and against any Chairman or member of such committee who may be accused of being disqualified under the provisions of this section, is hereby empowered to remove from office any such person or persons, and fill the vacancy or vacancies thereby occasioned by appointment of some suitable person, who shall serve until a successor shall be duly elected.

RULE VII.
Vacancies.

Any vacancy or vacancies happening or existing in the Democratic nomination for any office to be voted for by the electors of the entire State of Pennsylvania, and which vacancy cannot be under law filled at a proper Primary election, shall be filled by the State Committee, which shall have authority to make and certify a nomination. Like vacancy or vacancies in nominations in any Congressional, Senatorial or representative district shall be filled by the Executive Committee. Like vacancy or vacancies in any other electoral division shall be filled by the subordinate committee in whose District such vacancy or vacancies shall occur.

RULE VIII.
Quorums.

In the State Committee, Executive Committee and in Division Committees a majority of the whole number of the members shall be required to constitute a quorum.

RULE IX.
Sec. 1. These rules may be altered or amended at any time by the State Committee, provided ten days' notice of the proposed changes shall be given in writing to each member.

After the rules had been adopted a resolution was adopted unanimously endorsing the patriotic work of the President on the tolls exemption matter, as follows:

"The Democratic State Central Committee of Pennsylvania in convention here today heartily endorse the patriotic work of President Wilson and the Democratic members of Congress in opposing the tolls exemption bill."

HIS FIRST ACT.
"His first act was one of his best acts when he called to his right hand and made the premier of his great administration the man who has been three times the leader of our party in the United States and has taught the world what true Democracy in this world means—Mr. Bryan."

"You saw last night that he made no mistake when he went into the southland and offered one of the most distinguished sons of that country the post of our navy department, for you saw that he was not a man of the world."

treaty obligations and therefore in advocating the repeal of the law permitting American vessels owned by a few persons to pass through the Panama Canal without paying tolls.

"We stand with Thomas Jefferson in advocating equal and exact justice to all, special privileges to none."

Chairman Morris then stated that the various reports of officers would be made at the regular meeting of the State Committee following the primary but he desired to make the following statement:

"In view of some criticism, however, I want to say that efforts to keep up adequate headquarters and of giving every service to candidates, irrespective of faction, have been made. One question that has been raised is that money collected for the use of the State Committee has been expended on certain candidates. Not one single cent collected is being spent on a single primary candidate, but the money is being expended as before, for the maintenance of headquarters, publicity and the services of the party and every help has been offered to candidates in furnishing petition blanks and filing petitions and the lists of names of Democrats are available to all candidates. This has been so and it is now so."

PALMER SPEAKS.

Congressman Palmer being called upon for a speech, in part said:

"Most of you were at the magnificent and successful dinner in honor of Jefferson's birthday held by the Central Democratic Club of Harrisburg last night, and I did not think that, after I had kept you up until nearly one o'clock with a long speech, you would have the nerve to drag me before you this morning."

"Of course, it is a pleasure for me always to talk to and for Democrats, and I never shirk the call of duty in that regard, and if I can ever say a word that will lend encouragement to the Democracy of Pennsylvania, it will be a great pleasure for me to do so."

CONGRATULATES COMMITTEE.

"I want to say this morning a word of congratulation to the Democracy of Pennsylvania upon the patriotic, earnest and sincere way in which its representatives in this State Central Committee have met the demands of the hour. Under our new law, giving to the people themselves the right to nominate all candidates for offices, local and State, the day of the State convention is gone."

"In other words, hereafter the State Committee will become the platform making body of the Pennsylvania Democracy. The serious and earnest manner in which you have gone about the business of making up the rules for the party and State augurs well for the future of the great work which you will have to do in making up a platform which will express the views of the Democracy of the State. Nothing in the way of any steam roller process has been attempted by anybody, but the members of the committee themselves have made these rules."

"When the next State Committee comes here, elected by the people, I trust that they will, in the same free and open way, expressing their own views, make up the resolution upon which we will go to the State and ask for the suffrages of all the citizens of Pennsylvania."

"I have never had any doubt that the country is behind President Wilson upon that matter. I never had any doubt that the Democratic party of Pennsylvania, which started with Wilson way back in 1911, is behind him upon it almost to a man. And I am delighted that this committee, which speaks for the party, has shown the courage and has shown the willingness, in this hour when men are attacking the President's policy who ought to be supporting it, to declare that we in Pennsylvania stand where we always stood, for equal rights for all, special privileges to none."

WHEN SOME FAILED.

"It is true that some Democrats in the House of Representatives, when this issue was presented to them, did not support the repeal of the exemption of coast wise shipments from the payment of tolls through the Panama Canal. The people of the country had elected 224 Democrats to the American House of Representatives, and I am glad to say that only 52 of them could be found who were willing to desert the old Jeffersonian doctrine upon that proposition. I am also glad to say that the tone of the United States Senate, made within the last two or three days, disclosed the fact that the Panama repeal bill will have a majority in the Senate of nearly 20 votes."

"It would have been a burning shame if the Democracy of Pennsylvania, which was more responsible for the nomination of Wilson than the party in any other state of the Union, had not been the first party organization to go behind him in this issue. I congratulate you that you are in the lead today, as you were in the van in 1912, out on the firing line, and at Baltimore. We made no mistake in putting Wilson in the White House. He made no mistake in surrounding himself by men who have led the battle of Democracy through all these years we have been in the wilderness."

Notice is hereby given that the Gettysburg Water Company has purchased a tapping machine, and that in the future no plumber will be permitted to tap the mains of the Water Company. That any person desiring to make connection with the mains of the Company shall first make application for permit at the office, and that any person or plumber connecting the water of the Company to any fixture for which the property owner does not have the proper permit, shall be dealt with according to law.

U. S. W. V. Association Growing.

The United Spanish War Veterans is doing great work for the boys who served between 1898 and 1902 in the War with Spain, in Cuba, Porto Rico, the Philippines, and in the Chinese Relief Expedition as well as for those who had the more tiresome experience in the great southern camps while waiting for the call for active service which to their regret never came. They have Camps not merely dotting all of the States but also in the far-off Philippines, China, Hawaii, and in Cuba, Porto Rico, Panama, Alaska and in Canada. Yet there are tens of thousands of veterans who have not as yet joined the organization which is the only one that accepts all eligible veterans without regard to where they served, only that they must have honorable discharges for service performed at some time between April 26, 1898 and July 4th, 1902.

This organization is doing faithful work in Congress for the interests of our younger veterans where it is well represented both in the House and Senate. The Hey Bill, which grants a pension to the widows and orphans of Spanish War Veterans, has passed the House of Representatives, and all comrades ought to write Senators Boies Penrose and Geo. T. Oliver, asking them to support this Bill.

The U. S. W. V. as they are often called, have extended the right hand of comradeship to the veterans of the Civil War, and have offered them free Honorary Membership in their Camps. Many of the G. A. R. comrades have accepted this offer and in two cases have joined with their Posts in a body as L. E. W. Gay Post No. 312, G. A. R., with Benjamin C. Flaham, Jr., Camp No. 51 of Philadelphia and Washington Post No. 37 with Gen. H. C. Sherman Camp No. 13, of Wilkes Barre.

The United Spanish War Veterans of Pennsylvania is holding a large camp and picnic soon to be held at the Department as well as at the State and National old Soldier State. Twenty Camps have been organized in the last 12 months of which 12 have formed in the last six under the present Department Commander, Thos. M. Stafford of Athens, Pa., and a large number of new Camps are in process of organization.

OBJECTS OF THE U. S. W. V. Encouragement of Good Citizenship. Cementing the Ties of Friendship formed during their Campaigns.

Helping the Comrades and their Dependents when in Need or otherwise. Honoring the Memory of our Comrades and all Patriots of other Wars of the Republic.

Dissemination of Historical Knowledge of their Campaigns.

Why should there be a Camp of this organization in our town? The Department Commander will gladly furnish all information as to the methods used to form a Camp here.

Saved from Burning Accident.

Mrs. Rebecca Bower, wife of Thomas E. Bower of New Oxford, had a narrow escape from serious burning last week. The grape vine in the yard at the Bower home had been trimmed and after the branches had been gathered up and removed from the yard Mrs. Bower picked up a handful of the fine twigs and taking them into the house raised a lid and threw them into the cook stove. As quick as flash the flames flew up and ignited a loose outing cloth dressing saque that she wore, and passed up the arm and over the front and back of her body, but very fortunately she wore a sunbonnet and this prevented her hair from being burned. Miss Edna, a daughter, who happened to be in the kitchen at the time, threw a shawl about the mother and assisted in tearing the burning garment from her, thus preventing the spread of the fire to her other clothing. The saque, when thrown upon the floor continued to blaze but was soon extinguished.

Thieves Work an Unusual Scheme.

Several young men worked an unusual scheme in Littlestown recently, going to a boarding house or hotel, they requested a room, telling the lady of the house that their baggage would arrive on the evening train, but in the meantime asked to be shown to their room as they wished to change shirts. The request having been complied with, and the landlady having gone down stairs they "got busy" and all valuables in adjoining rooms were taken. On going down stairs they asked the location of some business place and parting that was the last seen of them.

At one place the man after being shown to his room called down stairs asking if there was a Y. M. C. A. in town. When the lady went up stairs after the man had gone out, she found the bureau drawers had been ransacked and $8 in a child's bank missing.

Wild Turkeys Protected.

Last Monday three wild turkeys were set at liberty in the South Mountain, near what is known as the Pine Stump Springs, by the State Game Department. The turkeys brought there were two hens and a gobbler. The hunting of wild turkeys is forbidden until after the 1914-15 season.

DRY : GOODS DEPARTMENT : STORE

During this Month of April

There will be Plenty of Business

For all Stores that are Fixed for It

The question is---

"Where can I find what I want?"

"Where will I likely get best value for my money?"

"Where will I have best selection?"

The store that for over a quarter of a century --think of the time--has always endeavored to give "WEAVER'S" as the answer to these questions has planned--and is now stocked as never before to fill these requirements.

No matter whether it be an expensive or popular priced article we have always insisted that it should have value, that is--give money's worth; and because of that and the service we give, we have made this a business of unusual amount for towns the size of Gettysburg.

Anything you see advertised elsewhere in the Dry Goods, Carpets or Ladies Ready-to-wear line--try us first--we will not only have it, but will probably save you money on its purchase. Besides you do not buy a pig in a poke, and further-- if you think you have gotten the wrong thing after you get home--we cheerfully take it back.

LOVE GUARDED SECRET

By GERTRUDE MARY SHERIDAN.

"Where did you pick up that man, Glennon?"

Many a time was the head bookkeeper of Porter & Co. asked the question. Invariably a quizzical, and then a certain far away retrospective expression would come into his face.
Seriously almost tenderly he would reply in a certain subdued tone:

"Uh, I came across him incidentally."

"He's got his footing mighty solid—a cracker-jack in his line, sure thing!"
Then a glow of pride would illuminate the habitually serious face of Harvey Glennon, who always looked as if there was some dim wrath of the past that would not down at a ready bidding.

He had reason to distrust himself.
The love of strong drink had been inherited, he was a natural born gambler. All through his life there had been periodical spells where he had "broken out." He would go away secretly, indulge the propensity that was an appetite with him and return to work haggard and hunted looking, not even his pretty daughter, Irene, questioning his statement that he had been on a visit to his boyhood's home.

But Ernest Dawson knew—knew, and with sealed lips anxiously, loyally watched the man he loved and respected. For five years after a terrible lesson, he had evaded those deep pitfalls that yawned for him and all because of Ernest Dawson—Ernest Dawson the stone whom the builders had rejected, Ernest Dawson who had "risen as stepping stones from his dead self to better things."

It was in the midst of one of his reckless bouts of dissipation and at a notorious gambling resort. Glennon, flushed with wine, had played away his last dollar in cash and was just about to give his note to make a new bet, when Dawson, the handy man about the place, burst in upon them with the stirring words:

"The police!"

Instantly the gaming paraphernalia was hustled into a vault, the electric lights were extinguished and there

He Could Readily Surmise What Had Happened.

was a general stampede. Glennon felt his arms seized. He was hurried down a dark passageway, into an alley and led to the nearest street to recognize his guide as Ernest Dawson.

"What does this mean," he had asked bewilderedly.

"A false alarm! I have saved you at the risk of losing my position," was the ready announcement. "You remember tossing me a liberal tip a week ago when you had won a big sum? It came to me when I needed it most, to send to my poor old mother. I have been forced to take that position in that wretched den of vice because I was out of work and starving. Tonight when I saw how those swindlers were leading you on into their clutches, I sprang the false signal of a raid. I shall never go back there. I am ashamed that I ever degraded myself with such a connection. I beg of you to shun that crowd.
You are not of their class. Do not be offended, but I feel I have saved you from ruin, for once they got you indebted to them they would pursue you to the limit. That is their system."

The result was that Glennon realized that he had earned a privilege.
The further work was that he had saved himself in young Dawson. Behold at the end of the years to find him a happy man, a man of position and in love with the daughter of his benefactor.

Dawson had never told his love for Irene who seemed to have only a kindly interest in him, but hope irradiated his life. Then came a "breakdown," foreboding, Glennon "breakout" once more. He was gone for a week. Dawson hunted him up, got him back into normal trim and co-coated from everybody the truth.

Daily, however, he experienced a new uneasiness and anxiety. There was a change in Glennon. He had grown morbid, nervous, unsociable.
He acted like a man who was constantly on the lookout for something dreadful to happen. Several times low browed, mean looking men called him out of the office and Glennon would return looking depressed and worried.
Then one day he was taken ill and removed to his home, and with twenty-four hours was lying helpless and delirious with a wasting fever.

It was a week later and Friday evening when the head of the business house came to Dawson with a serious look upon his face.

"Mr. Dawson," he spoke, can you arrange for some immediate night work?"

"Certainly," bowed Dawson.

"I want you to go over Mr. Glen-non's books," announced Mr. Porter, to the utter stupefaction of Dawson.

"Oh, sir! you do not mean to say that there is anything wrong?" uttered Dawson in a gasp.

"I fear there is, I have made only a cursory investigation, but there is a shortage of $3,000 in the cash."

Daylight was streaming through the office windows when Dawson completed his task of going over the books. He sat back with gray blank despair on his face.

"It is true—too true," he mourned.
"It cannot be held back. Oh, my poor friend; Why did you not tell me of your terrible trouble, of your maddening temptation."

He could readily surmise what had happened. A swindling crew had got Glennon into their clutches. They had obtained some hold on him. In his desperation Glennon had used the money of the firm.

His head bent upon his hands, Dawson sat for nearly an hour—thinking, thinking. What could he do to avert the impending disgrace, how save the man he loved, whose daughter he loved even more?

"I will do it!"

With the words Dawson arose to his feet. He wandered about the streets till 10 o'clock. Then he entered a bank. He had been thrifty for the past five years, he had received a liberal salary, he had saved most of it.

When he returned to the office he had most of his savings in bank bills—$3,000. When no one was observing him, Dawson placed the package far back in the corner of a drawer in Glennon's desk.

WENT TO THEIR DEATH

ANIMAL TRAGEDY IN THE HIMALAYAN WILDS.

Herd Obediently Followed Its Lord and Master as It Had Been Accustomed, With Instant Unquestioning Obedience.

The cruel and savage side of nature gives P. St. Mars the theme for some of the most readable stories of natural history that have appeared in a long time. A tragedy of the wild is "Magnificent of the Steeps," a story of the wonderful takins, the goatlike antelopes of the eastern Himalayas. It is told in "On Nature's Trail." The bull takin has led his herd of three cows and two young through adventures with a snow leopard, with wild dogs and bears, always demanding and always being accorded, so strict and cruel is herd law, absolute, unquestioning, unhesitating obedience.

Finally the takin herd met a hunter. The herd escaped. But the hunter was no ordinary hunter. He was "an American of long experience, one who did not give up things lightly." So the herd and the hunter met again. And Mr. St. Mars says of this meeting:

"At a sharp bend in the steepest place, and at a point where the path was narrowest and strung on the mountainside like a spider's web along a wall—just there the bull, who was leading, stopped dead. He had to. He was looking full into the quiet, gray eyes of the hunter, not six yards away.

"The position was slightly exciting. "None but a bird could have stepped off that path on either hand—sheer off, sheer down! Neither could turn back; and if either went on, somebody would have to get hurt.

"The silence which followed was refined and clarified.

"Death hovered about, waiting to pounce.

"The double flash and twin report of the heavy Express rifle which followed seemed to bring the whole world of silence tumbling down about the hunter's ears. And the hunter's jaw fell and he gasped. His face paled to gray. Lines drew about his eyes. He became in seconds ten years older.

"Nothing had happened. That was the rub.

"The hunter had fired both barrels almost together.

"He had not missed. Such men as he do not miss. Yet the bull takin had not even acknowledged receipt of either bullet; had not winced, even.

"He just stood there, like a huge mass of superb sculpture in black and bronze, motionless. Nevertheless he was hit unto death, and he knew it. Seconds raced with his strength against the foe. In an instant he must have measured the distance from him to the enemy, and the time it would take to get there, and have realized—probably for the first and certainly the last time in his implacable, intolerant life—the fact that he was impotent.

"I like to think of what he did then. It was so supreme, so grand, so typical of the beast.

"He turned. He screamed one scream of unadulterated rage, and he plunged headlong over the edge of the path to death. Instantly—and this was the grandest part of all, perhaps with unswerving obedience to discipline, the whole herd turned as one beast and followed him blindly into oblivion.

"The hunter stood like one carved in stone—he might have been watching the abyssal plunge of human souls into the pit by the feeling writ on his strong face—and he counted the seconds till the faraway thuds announced the washing to pieces of his quarry on the rocks a thousand or more feet below.

"Then he turned away slowly and retraced his steps.

"Magnificent," he muttered. And that was all."

Incident of War of 1812.

One hundred years ago the northern division of the American army had gone into winter quarters near Niagara, N. Y. The British army had encamped not far distant and a clash between the opposing forces was regarded as imminent. A letter written from Plattsburg and dated January 3, 1814, contained the following: "For some time past it has been strongly suspected that the enemy meditated an attack upon this place. Night before last the commandant received information that the enemy were in motion—that they had cañons mounted on runners, and were confiscating all the horses within reach. This information has neither been confirmed nor contradicted, but the destruction of this post at the present time, being of the first importance to the enemy, it is reasonable to suppose that an effort will be made to effect it."

The Symbol. He had decided at last to make the great anonal, convinced that a word would suffice to assure his good fortune. He only lacked a beginning, a beautiful, poetic, inspiring beginning. At last he had found it. Presenting himself to the desired one, and suddenly showing her a ring, he said: "My love for you is like this ring; it has no end." The young lady examined the little golden circle for awhile with close attention, and then returned it to him. "My love for you," she said, "is also like this ring; it has no beginning."—Youth's Companion.

Told of Turner. Turner, the English painter, was blunt-spoken and often gruff, but on occasion he unbent enough to jest—occasionally at his own expense. The Bristol Times and Mirror gives an amusing instance.

His famous picture, "The Slave Ship"—that wonderful combination of flaming and gorgeous colors—was once described by an exasperated critic as "a cat having a fit in a dish of tomato salad." Turner had never heard the phrase, but once when a salad was passed to him at a dinner, he put on a critical and considering air as he regarded it, and remarked to his neighbor:

"Nice, cool green, that lettuce, isn't it? And the beetroot a-pretty red—not quite strong enough, and the dressing, delicate tint of yellow, that! Add some mustard, and then you have one of my pictures!"

He Spoke the Language.

A daily newspaper tells of the arrival at San Francisco of Franklin Dalt, the eleven-year-old son of a Philippine head-hunter. The boy came in the care of an Episcopal missionary who has spent five years among the tribesmen of Luzon, and is in charge of the youngster's education.

The Filipino had remarked that he knew about the United States. He understood baseball, he said, although he called it "miki fula."

"So you know baseball?" one questioner remarked. "What do you call the umpire?"

"Tell him," the missionary prompted, when the youngster hesitated.

"Thief sometimes, but robber mostly," the boy answered.—Youth's Companion.

Too Dangerous.

Dr. Alexis Carrel, the famous surgeon of the Rockefeller institute in New York, said the other day of an experiment that he deemed dangerous:

"An experiment of that nature reminds me of the Cincinnatus carder.

"A Cincinnatus carder shot a dog by accident. He went to show the owner how it happened, and in doing so shot him. When the police came to arrest him he attempted to show them how he had shot the owner, and in doing so shot a constable. Later, in showing the coroner how he had shot the constable, he shot the coroner."

Capitalizing Kitchener.

The Boston Transcript tells an amusing story of one of the subjects of Lord Kitchener, consul general of Egypt, who turned the power and influence of the famous English soldier to his personal profit.

While driving one day, Lord Kitchener noticed an old man in the street whom he recognized as an acquaintance from the Sudan. The consul general ordered the driver to stop, and invited the old man to take a seat in the carriage. So the two drove together through the town to the place to which the Sudanese wanted to go.

A few days later the dark friend of Lord Kitchener was seen hovering about the British agency. At last an officer asked him what he wanted.

"I should so much like to drive out with Lord Kitchener once more," the old man replied.

"Why?" the officer asked.

"You see," the Sudanese answered, naively, "after my friends and acquaintances saw me sitting at the side of Lord Kitchener, they came to me one after the other, and from one I received five pounds, from another two pounds, from others one pound, and 40 piasters from the very poorest. They all believed that I could speak in their favor to El Lord.

"And," the old man added, "I should very much like to see that happen all over again."

One Great Obstacle.

The French are not inclined to take things too seriously. Thus, while they love and respect the venerable French Academy, they never refrain from making it the subject of a little good-natured wit. Even the members themselves, as this entry in Victor Hugo's notebook will show, indulge themselves in occasional sallies against the famous institution.

On December 17, 1846, Victor Hugo, himself one of the 40 "immortal" members of the academy, wrote in his notebook, "Today, Thursday, in the academy, I spoke there with Dupin the elder about Balzac and his chances of election to the academy. "Thunder! Dupin interrupted me. 'So you really believe that, without any more to do, Balzac will be chosen the first time he comes up for election.

"You quote examples where that has occurred, but those prove nothing. Think of it! Balzac, at the first presentation of his name! You have thought the matter over carefully? Good! But you have forgotten one reason why it is quite impossible that Balzac should be elected to the academy; he deserves it!"—Youth's Companion.
